FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
October 12, 2016

Raleigh, NC – Last night the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters Educational Foundation and UNC-TV co-sponsored a statewide radio and television debate featuring the two leading candidates in this fall’s Gubernatorial race in North Carolina. The Gubernatorial debate was broadcast across North Carolina by over 23 television stations and also available statewide on over 75 member radio stations, including the North Carolina News Network.

Joe Pomilla, President of the Broadcasters Educational Foundation said: “On behalf of the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters Educational Foundation, I want to thank both Governor Pat McCrory (R) and North Carolina Attorney General Roy Cooper (D) for participating in the debates. Their participation served our democratic process and was a benefit to voters in making an informed decision on November 8.”

The North Carolina Association of Broadcasters Educational Foundation will host a Senatorial between Senator Richard Burr (R) and former North Carolina House Representative Deborah Ross (D) debate tomorrow night (Thursday, October 13) that will be moderated by Jonathan Karl.

The North Carolina Association of Broadcasters Educational Foundation is a non-profit charitable foundation established by North Carolina’s radio and television broadcast stations.
